

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

FERRILL JOSEPH VOLPICELLI, Petitioner,
vs.
JACK PALMER, et al.,
Respondents.

Case No. 3:10-cv-00005-RCJ-VPC

ORDER

This is a petition for writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254 in which petitioner, a Nevada state prisoner, is proceeding pro se (ECF #7). Now before the court is respondents' answer to the remaining ground in the petition (ECF #49). Petitioner filed a traverse to the answer (ECF #51).

I. Procedural History and Background

Petitioner was convicted, pursuant to a jury trial, of one count of conspiracy to commit crimes against property, eight counts of burglary, and one count of unlawful possession, making, forgery or counterfeiting of inventory pricing labels. Exh. 39.¹ The state district court entered judgment of conviction on April 1, 2004. Id. The state court adjudicated petitioner a habitual criminal. Exhs. 38, 39. The court sentenced petitioner to one year in the Washoe County Jail for the conspiracy conviction, life with the possibility of parole after ten years on the burglary convictions and life with the possibility of parole after ten years on the possession conviction. Exh. 39. The burglary sentences were ¹ Exhibits 1-152 are exhibits to respondents' motion to dismiss (ECF #19) and may be found at ECF #s 20-25.

1 concurrent, the possession sentence was to run consecutive to the burglary sentence, and the conspiracy 2 sentence was to run concurrent to the burglary sentences. Id.

3 The Nevada Supreme Court affirmed petitioner's convictions on June 29, 2005, and remittitur 4 issued on July 26, 2005. Exhs. 68, 69.

5 On November 9, 2005, petitioner filed a state postconviction petition for writ of habeas corpus.
6 Exh. 75. The state district court appointed counsel, and a supplement to the petition was filed. Exhs.
7 88, 91. After briefing, the court granted the State's motion to dismiss in part. Exh. 100. The state 8 district court then conducted an evidentiary hearing on two different dates with respect to the remaining 9 four grounds. Exhs. 104, 119. The state district court issued written findings of fact, conclusions of 10 law and judgment denying the petition. Exh. 120. The Nevada Supreme Court affirmed the denial of 11 the petition on December 3, 2009, and remittitur issued on December 29, 2009. Exhs. 147, 148.

12 On December 30, 2009, petitioner dispatched his petition for writ of habeas corpus to this court 13 (ECF #7). In an order issued May 17, 2012, the court granted respondents' motion to dismiss in part 14 (ECF #38). Petitioner moved for a stay in order to exhaust his unexhausted claims, which this court 15 denied (ECF #39). This court then granted petitioner's motion to dismiss the unexhausted claims (ECF 16 #48). Respondents have answered the four claims of ineffective assistance of counsel that remain 17 before the court (ECF #49).

18 II. Legal Standards

19 A. Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act

20 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d), a provision of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act 21 (AEDPA), provides the legal standards for this court's consideration of the petition in this case:

22 An application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a person 23 in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court shall not be granted 24 with respect to any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in State 25 court proceedings unless the adjudication of the claim --

26 (1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an 27 unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as 28 determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or

(2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding.

28 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d).

1 The AEDPA “modified a federal habeas court’s role in reviewing state prisoner applications in 2 order to prevent federal habeas ‘retrials’ and to ensure that state-court convictions are given effect to 3 the extent possible under law.” Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 693-694 (2002). A state court decision is 4 contrary to clearly established Supreme Court precedent, within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2254, “if 5 the state court applies a rule that contradicts the governing law set forth in [the Supreme Court’s] cases” 6 or “if the state court confronts a set of facts that are materially indistinguishable from a decision of [the 7 Supreme Court] and nevertheless arrives at a result different from [the Supreme Court’s] precedent.”
8 Lockyer v. Andrade, 538 U.S. 63, 73 (2003) (quoting Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 405-406 (2000) 9 and citing Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 694 (2002)). This court’s ability to grant a writ is limited to cases 10 where “there is no possibility fair-minded jurists could disagree that the state court’s decision conflicts 11 with [Supreme Court] precedents.” Harrington v. Richter, 562 U.S. 86, 131 S.Ct. 770, 786 (2011).

12 A state court decision is contrary to clearly established Supreme Court precedent, within 13 the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2254, “if the state court applies a rule that contradicts the governing law 14 set forth in [the Supreme Court’s] cases” or “if the state court confronts a set of facts that are materially 15 indistinguishable from a decision of [the Supreme Court] and nevertheless arrives at a result different 16 from [the Supreme Court’s] precedent.” Lockyer v. Andrade, 538 U.S. 63 (2003) (quoting Williams v.
17 Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 405-06 (2000), and citing Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 694 (2002)).

18 A state court decision is an unreasonable application of clearly established Supreme Court 19 precedent, within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d), “if the state court identifies the correct governing 20 legal principle from [the Supreme Court’s] decisions but unreasonably applies that principle to the facts 21 of the prisoner’s case.” Andrade, 538 U.S. at 74 (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 413). The 22 “unreasonable application” clause requires the state court decision to be more than incorrect or 23 erroneous; the state court’s application of clearly established law must be objectively unreasonable. Id.
24 (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 409).

25 In determining whether a state court decision is contrary to federal law, this court looks to the 26 state courts’ last reasoned decision. See Ylst v. Nunnemaker, 501 U.S. 797, 803-04 (1991); Shackleford 27 v. Hubbard, 234 F.3d 1072, 1079 n.2 (9th Cir. 2000). Further, “a determination of a factual issue made 28

1 by a state court shall be presumed to be correct,” and the petitioner “shall have the burden of rebutting 2 the presumption of correctness by clear and convincing evidence.” 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1).

3 B. Ineffective Assistance of Counsel

4 Ineffective assistance of counsel claims are governed by the two-part test announced in 5 Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668 (1984). In Strickland, the Supreme Court held that a petitioner 6 claiming ineffective assistance of counsel has the burden of demonstrating that (1) the attorney made 7 errors so serious that he or she was not functioning as the “counsel” guaranteed by the Sixth 8 Amendment, and (2) that the deficient performance prejudiced the defense. Williams v. Taylor, 529 9 U.S. 362, 390-91 (2000) (citing Strickland, 466 U.S. at 687). To establish ineffectiveness, the 10 defendant must show that counsel’s representation fell below an objective standard of reasonableness.
11 Id. To establish prejudice, the defendant must show that there is a reasonable probability that, but for 12 counsel’s unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different. Id. A 13 reasonable probability is “probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome.” Id.
14 Additionally, any review of the attorney’s performance must be “highly deferential” and must adopt 15 counsel’s perspective at the time of the challenged conduct, in order to avoid the distorting effects of 16 hindsight. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 689. It is the petitioner’s burden to overcome the presumption that 17 counsel’s actions might be considered sound trial strategy. Id.

18 Ineffective assistance of counsel under Strickland requires a showing of deficient performance 19 of counsel resulting in prejudice, “with performance being measured against an objective standard of 20 reasonableness, . . . under prevailing professional norms.” Rompilla v. Beard, 545 U.S. 374, 380 (2005) 21 (internal quotations and citations omitted). When the ineffective assistance of counsel claim is based 22 on a challenge to a guilty plea, the Strickland prejudice prong requires a petitioner to demonstrate “that 23 there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel’s errors, he would not have pleaded guilty and 24 would have insisted on going to trial.” Hill v. Lockhart, 474 U.S. 52, 59 (1985).

25 If the state court has already rejected an ineffective assistance claim, a federal habeas court may 26 only grant relief if that decision was contrary to, or an unreasonable application of, the Strickland
27 standard. See Yarborough v. Gentry, 540 U.S. 1, 5 (2003). There is a strong presumption that counsel’s 28 conduct falls within the wide range of reasonable professional assistance. Id.

1 The United States Supreme Court has described federal review of a state supreme court's 2 decision on a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel as "doubly deferential." Cullen v. Pinholster, 3 131 S.Ct. 1388, 1403 (2011) (quoting Knowles v. Mirzayance, 129 S.Ct. 1411, 1413 (2009)). The 4 Supreme Court emphasized that: "We take a 'highly deferential' look at counsel's performance. . . .
 5 through the 'deferential lens of § 2254(d).'" Id. at 1403 (internal citations omitted). Moreover, federal 6 habeas review of an ineffective assistance of counsel claim is limited to the record before the state court 7 that adjudicated the claim on the merits. Cullen, 131 S.Ct. at 1398-1401. The United States Supreme 8 Court has specifically reaffirmed the extensive deference owed to a state court's decision regarding 9 claims of ineffective assistance of counsel:

10 Establishing that a state court's application of Strickland was unreasonable under § 11 2254(d) is all the more difficult. The standards created by Strickland and § 2254(d) are 12 both "highly deferential," id. at 689, 104 S.Ct. 2052; Lindh v. Murphy, 521 U.S. 320, 13 333, n.7, 117 S.Ct. 2059, 138 L.Ed.2d 481 (1997), and when the two apply in tandem, 14 review is "doubly" so, Knowles, 556 U.S. at —, 129 S.Ct. at 1420. The Strickland 15 standard is a general one, so the range of reasonable applications is substantial. 556 U.S. at —, 129 S.Ct. at 1420. Federal habeas courts must guard against the danger of equating unreasonableness under Strickland with unreasonableness under § 2254(d).
 When § 2254(d) applies, the question is whether there is any reasonable argument that counsel satisfied Strickland's deferential standard.

16 Harrington, 131 S.Ct. at 788. "A court considering a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel must 17 apply a 'strong presumption' that counsel's representation was within the 'wide range' of reasonable 18 professional assistance." Id. at 787 (quoting Strickland, 466 U.S. at 689). "The question is whether an 19 attorney's representation amounted to incompetence under prevailing professional norms, not whether 20 it deviated from best practices or most common custom." Id. (internal quotations and citations omitted).

21 III. Instant Petition

22 Ground 7

23 In the remaining claim in ground 7, petitioner alleges that his trial counsel rendered ineffective 24 assistance when he failed to object or otherwise protect petitioner from an allegedly excessive 25 restitution order (ECF #7, pp. 35-37). Petitioner argues that the restitution imposed was not accurately 26 computed, was not set out with specific findings, and exceeded the actual losses incurred. Id.

Respondents argue that this claim is not cognizable in federal habeas corpus proceedings (ECF #49, p. 8). This court agrees. An order of restitution does not satisfy the requirement that a person be “in custody in violation of the Constitution or laws or treaties of the United States.” 28 U.S.C. §2254(a); Bailey v. Hill, 599 F.3d 976, 978 (9th Cir. 2010). Moreover, a petitioner cannot avoid the in-custody requirement merely by raising his claim in the context of ineffective assistance of counsel. U.S. v. Thiele, 314 F.3d 399, 402 (9th Cir. 2002); U.S. v. Kramer, 195 F.3d 1129, 1130 (9th Cir. 1999); Washington v. Smith, 564 F.3d 1350, 1351 (7th Cir. 2009). Accordingly, ground 7 is not cognizable and is denied.²

Ground 8

In the remaining portion of ground 8, petitioner claims that trial counsel was ineffective in failing to challenge the convictions and sentences for both burglary and unlawful possession, making, forging or counterfeiting inventory pricing labels as multiplicitous in violation of double jeopardy (ECF #7, pp. 45-46).

To determine whether two offenses are the “same” for double jeopardy purposes, a court must consider “whether each offense contains an element not contained in the other; if not, they are the ‘same offense’ and double jeopardy bars additional punishment and successive prosecution.” United States v. Dixon, 509 U.S. 688, 696 (1993) (citing Blockburger v. United States, 284 U.S. 299, 304 (1932)). “Conversely, ‘[d]ouble jeopardy is not implicated so long as each violation requires proof of an element

Moreover, in affirming the denial of this claim, the Nevada Supreme Court pointed out that petitioner failed to demonstrate prejudice and failed “to identify any way in which to reasonably calculate the value lost by the businesses” due to his crimes. Exh. 147 at 6. Further, petitioner’s trial counsel testified at the state postconviction petition evidentiary hearing that his and his client’s main focus at sentencing was on the potential life sentences. Exh. 104. His counsel did not clearly recall the restitution calculations, but testified that he did not, in hindsight, see a reasonable basis to challenge the restitution and that at sentencing his client had been much more concerned with the potential life sentences than with any restitution award. Id. The sentencing transcript reflects that petitioner’s counsel did, in fact, question the restitution calculation. Exh. 38 at 32-33. Ground 7 is not cognizable in federal habeas, but in any event, it cannot be said that the Nevada Supreme Court’s disposition of petitioner’s claim that his counsel was ineffective for failing to object to or challenge the restitution order was contrary to or an unreasonable application of Strickland or other clearly established federal law. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d).

1 which the other does not.”” Wilson v. Belleque, 554 F.3d 816, 829 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting United States
2 v. Vargas-Castillo, 329 F.3d 715, 720 (9th Cir. 2003). ““If each [offense] requires proof of a fact that 3 the other does not, the Blockburger test is satisfied, notwithstanding a substantial overlap in the proof
4 offered to establish the crimes.”” Id. (quoting Iannelli v. United States, 420 U.S. 770, 785-86 n.17 5 (1975).

6 In affirming the denial of this claim, the Nevada Supreme Court set forth the Blockburger test.
7 Exh. 147 at 5. The state supreme court also set forth the statutory elements of (1) burglary: when a 8 person enters a building with the intent to commit any felony, or to obtain money or property under false 9 pretenses (NRS 205.060(1)); and (2) unlawful possession, making, forging or counterfeiting of 10 inventory pricing labels: when a person possesses, makes, alters, forges, or counterfeits any sales 11 receipt or inventory pricing label with the intent to cheat or defraud a retailer (NRS 205.965(1)). Id.
12 at 6. The Nevada Supreme Court then concluded that the acts of burglary and the unlawful possession, 13 making, forging or counterfeiting of inventory pricing labels offense are distinct individual acts with 14 different double jeopardy principles, and therefore, the conviction and sentencing for the offenses does 15 not run afoul of double jeopardy safeguards. Id. The Nevada Supreme Court held that petitioner failed 16 to demonstrate a reasonable probability that the outcome of the proceedings would have been different 17 had trial counsel argued that the conviction and sentence for both crimes violated double jeopardy and 18 determined that the district court did not err in denying this claim.

19 As set forth above, the offenses of burglary and unlawful possession, making, forging or 20 counterfeiting of inventory pricing labels in Nevada each contain an element not contained in the other.
21 Thus, petitioner has failed to demonstrate that his counsel was deficient in not challenging the 22 convictions and sentences for both offenses on double jeopardy grounds nor has he demonstrated a 23 reasonable probability that the outcome of the proceedings would have been different. Petitioner has 24 failed to demonstrate that the Nevada Supreme Court’s decision is contrary to, or involves an 25 unreasonable application of, Strickland or other clearly established federal law. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d).
26 Accordingly, ground 8 is meritless and is denied.

1 Ground 11

2 In the remaining portion of ground 11, petitioner claims that he was denied effective assistance 3 of counsel when trial counsel failed to impeach accomplice Brett Bowman's ("Bowman") allegedly 4 inconsistent and/or perjured testimony with Bowman's prior inconsistent statements (ECF #7, pp. 57-5 69).

6 The Nevada Supreme Court examined the state district court's denial of this claim:

7 [Petitioner] compares statements Bowman made prior to trial with those that 8 Bowman made during trial and argues they were inconsistent. The district court 9 determined that the statements [petitioner] compares covered different topics and that the questions were posed differently in each situation. The district court also determined that the questions posed to Bowman necessarily elicited different answers.

10 Exh. 147 at 7.

11 Accordingly, the state supreme court held that: "Those statements were, therefore, consistent 12 statements that could not have been used for impeachment purposes. See NRS 51.035(2)(a); Leonard 13 v. State, 958 P.2d 1220, 1230 (Nev. 1998)." Id.

14 The Nevada Supreme Court held that petitioner failed to demonstrate a reasonable probability 15 that the outcome of the proceedings would have been different had trial counsel questioned Bowman 16 about these statements and determined that the district court did not err in denying this claim.

17 This court has reviewed the trial testimony, the transcript of the evidentiary hearing on the state 18 postconviction petition, as well as the state district court findings of fact, conclusions of law and order 19 denying petitioner's state postconviction petition. The record supports the Nevada Supreme Court's 20 conclusion that the state district court did not err in finding that Bowman's prior statements during 21 police interviews were not inconsistent, and therefore, could not have been used for impeachment 22 purposes. See, e.g., Exh. 120; Exh. 29D at 10-51 (Bowman's testimony); Exh. 29E, generally, and at 23 17-18, 21-28 (defense counsel's cross-examination of Bowman). Petitioner claims that, contrary to 24 Bowman's trial testimony, detectives retrieved or arranged the retrieval of Bowman's last paycheck 25 from his employer (ECF #7, pp. 65). Petitioner also claims that, contrary to Bowman's trial testimony, 26 Bowman had informed police that petitioner and Bowman had stolen the stereo that was in Bowman's 27 apartment when it was searched. Id. at 65-67. However, the record provides no support for these 28

1 contentions. Even on the face of the petition, the alleged statements to police that petitioner compares 2 to Bowman's statements at trial are not inconsistent. See, e.g., id. at 65-67; see also Exh. 120, state 3 district court order denying state postconviction petition at 3-4. It appears that defense counsel tried, 4 unsuccessfully, to elicit testimony from a detective that would contradict Bowman's testimony when 5 he cross-examined the detective about how Bowman secured his last paycheck after he was arrested and 6 about the stereo found in Bowman's apartment. Exh. 30C at 33-41. Instead, the detective testified that 7 the police allowed Bowman to endorse his last paycheck before it expired and that there was a stereo 8 in Bowman's apartment when they searched it that they did not investigate because it did not appear 9 new and did not otherwise arouse police suspicion. Id. Neither Bowman's testimony or the testimony 10 of three detectives from the Reno and Sparks Police Departments (or the supposedly inconsistent 11 statements petitioner lists in ground 11) supports the claim that Bowman made inconsistent statements.
12 Exh. 30 at 1-42; Exh. 30B at 1-11; 32-51; Exh. 30C at 1-32.

13 Petitioner has failed to meet his burden of demonstrating that his counsel's performance was 14 deficient for allegedly failing to impeach a witness with statements that were neither inconsistent with 15 the witness's prior statements or admissible hearsay under state law. Petitioner also has failed to 16 demonstrate a reasonable probability of a different outcome. The Nevada Supreme Court's denial of 17 the claim was not contrary to or an unreasonable application of Strickland or other federal law.
18 Accordingly, ground 11 is denied.

19 Ground 18(b)

20 Petitioner claims that trial counsel was ineffective for failing to object to the State's improper 21 use of a 2004 conviction in seeking a habitual criminal enhancement (ECF #11-2, pp. 109-110).

22 The State sought habitual criminal adjudication of petitioner and filed a 2004 judgment of 23 conviction for obtaining money by false pretenses along with two other judgments of conviction – (1) 24 a 1997 federal conviction of four counts of felony tax perjury and (2) a 1998 Nevada conviction of two 25 counts of burglary. Exh. 38 at 4-5, 44. The indictment in the instant case was filed in June 2003 for 26 criminal conduct that occurred in 2001. Exh. 4.

27 NRS 207.010(1)(a) provides that a person with two prior felonies may be sentenced as a habitual 28 criminal to five to twenty years imprisonment. NRS 207.010(1)(b) provides that a person with three

1 previous felonies may be sentenced as a habitual criminal to (1) life without the possibility of parole; 2 (2) life with the possibility of parole after ten years; or (3) a definite term of twenty-five years, with 3 eligibility for parole after ten years. In Nevada, “[a]ll prior convictions used to enhance a sentence must 4 have preceded the primary offense.” Brown v. State, 624 P.2d 1005, 1006 (Nev. 1981).

5 In affirming the denial of this claim, the Nevada Supreme Court agreed with petitioner that 6 because the 2004 judgment of conviction was not entered before the unlawful actions leading to the 7 convictions in the instant case occurred, the 2004 conviction was not properly used as a past conviction 8 for purposes of adjudication as a habitual criminal in this case. Exh. 147 at 3 (citing Brown, 624 P.2d 9 at 1005 (Nev. 1981)). However, the state supreme court pointed out that the two other judgments of 10 conviction presented consisted of six additional felonies that were properly considered in the habitual 11 criminal determination and noted that petitioner does not argue otherwise. Id.

12 The state supreme court specifically discussed the fact that the prosecution presented evidence 13 that the felony tax perjury convictions

14 stemmed from a plan running over at least four years, with numerous 15 transactions, through which [petitioner] fraudulently gained at least $800,000.
16 Accordingly, the previous tax perjury convictions were not the result of the same act, transaction, or occurrence and may be used as four separate convictions for purposes of habitual criminal adjudication. Rezin v. State, 596 P.2d 226, 227 (Nev. 1979).

17 Id. at 4. See also sentencing hearing, Exh. 38 at 39-40, 58.

18 The Nevada Supreme Court thus concluded that any error was harmless because, even without 19 the 2004 conviction, the State presented a sufficient number of convictions for the habitual criminal 20 enhancement. Id. (citing NRS 178.598: “[a]ny error, defect, irregularity or variance which does not 21 affect substantial rights shall be disregarded”). The Nevada Supreme Court noted the state district 22 court’s statement to petitioner: “you are the poster child for habitual criminality in that every time 23 you’re released from custody it seems like you’re out making a full-time living stealing,” in concluding 24 that petitioner failed to demonstrate a reasonable probability that the outcome of the sentencing hearing 25 would have been different had his trial counsel objected to the use of the 2004 conviction. Id.

26 Petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the Nevada Supreme Court’s denial of the claim was 27 contrary to or an unreasonable application of Strickland or other federal law. Accordingly, ground 18(b) 28 is denied.

1 The petition is thus denied in its entirety.

2 IV. Certificate of Appealability

3 In order to proceed with an appeal, petitioner must receive a certificate of appealability. 28 4 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(1); Fed. R. App. P. 22; 9th Cir. R. 22-1; Allen v. Ornoski, 435 F.3d 946, 950-51 (9th 5 Cir. 2006); see also United States v. Mikels, 236 F.3d 550, 551-52 (9th Cir. 2001). Generally, a 6 petitioner must make “a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right” to warrant a 7 certificate of appealability. Id.; 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2); Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 483-84 8 (2000). “The petitioner must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court’s 9 assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong.” Id. (quoting Slack, 529 U.S. at 484). In 10 order to meet this threshold inquiry, the petitioner has the burden of demonstrating that the issues are 11 debatable among jurists of reason; that a court could resolve the issues differently; or that the questions 12 are adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed further. Id. This court has considered the issues 13 raised by petitioner, with respect to whether they satisfy the standard for issuance of a certificate of 14 appealability, and determines that none meet that standard. The court will therefore deny petitioner a 15 certificate of appealability.

16 V. Conclusion

17 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the petition for a writ of habeas corpus (ECF #7) is 18 DENIED IN ITS ENTIRETY.

19 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the clerk SHALL ENTER JUDGMENT accordingly and 20 close this case.

21 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that petitioner is DENIED A CERTIFICATE OF 22 APPEALABILITY.
